Layton Standards

If you think road travel in America is limited to cruising our country's magnificent interstate highway system, think again. Because just off the main thoroughfares, beyond the tree lines and privacy fences, is an entrancing mix of state highways, gravel roads, and yes, even some dirt tracks, where you'll find an America that you don't see on the nightly news. And what better way to discover the undiscovered than in a Layton. No need to search for a hotel or restaurant when you can park your own accommodations at some out-of-the-way campground or stop for a quiet picnic lunch in a small-town park. Layton: What a great way to find your place in America!

Tongue and Groove Plywood Floor

Stronger than Oriented Strand Board (OSB). Plywood is a highly stable panel when exposed to moisture or high humidity. Other manufacturers slip customers OSB — the very same floor they spoke against for decades.

All Layton units are tested for 15 minutes in a high-pressure shower spray to guarantee that they are watertight.

Actual Weights, Not Estimated Weights

For your safety and peace of mind, Skyline weighs every recreational vehicle at the factory. Other manufacturers use estimated weights which can be in error by as much as 20 percent. Insist your recreational vehicle includes an actual weight next to the entry door.
